Announce the Marriage of Miss Klein and A. Diamanti

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Klein, Vineland, N. J., announce the marriage of their daughter, Virginia A., to Joseph A. Diamanti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emidio Diamanti, Andalusia, on Wednesday.

The bride, formerly of Robins, was attired in a lavender crepe suit with lilac accessories. She wore a corsage of orchids.

The maid of honor, Miss Bertha Neld, Torresdale, wore a yellow crepe suit, and a corsage of white orchids. W. J. MacAndrews, Wildwood, N. J., was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride.

After a 30-day cruise to the Virgin Islands, West Indies and South America, the couple will be at home in Andalusia.

EXPECT TO EMPLOY 100
ON WATER MAIN PROJECT

Morrisville Awaits Word From Public Works Administration to Proceed

WORK TO COST $20,000

MORRISVILLE, July 13—More than 100 of the Morrisville unemployed will be given work just as soon as word is received here to proceed with the water main project which has been approved by the Works Progress Administration. The work calls for the laying of 2400 feet of new six inch mains and lowering of 2400 more feet.

The government will pay $17,000 which is the estimated cost of the labor and the borough will purchase the material at an estimated cost of $2400.

Borough Engineer Harry Lee submitted this project last January and word was received yesterday that it had been approved.

The work will include: Laying of 320 feet of six inch main on Franklin street between Pennsylvania and Stockham avenues; 203 feet on Stockham avenue; 567 feet on Wright avenue between Philadelphia and Robertson avenues; 170 feet on Keystone avenue; 300 feet on Mercer avenue; 50 feet on Delaware avenue; 390 feet on Riverside avenue; 400 feet on East Philadelphia avenue.

The mains to be lowered include: 600 feet on Deiter avenue, 500 feet on West Cleveland avenue, 520 feet on Harrison avenue, 800 feet on Robertson avenue. The mains will be lowered to a depth of about five feet to give sufficient covering to prevent freezing.

Medical Men and Editor
Laud An Aged Physician

HARTSVILLE, July 13—Members of the medical profession and a newspaper editor were guests Thursday evening of Dr. John B. Carrell, Hartboro, when a dinner served at the Golden Glow Tearoom marked the physician's 84th birthday. Numerous letters and floral tributes arrived at the Carrell home, in testimony of his many friends.

At the evening dinner the guests lauded the aged doctor's high standing in the medical profession, and extended best wishes for many years to come. The guests were: Dr. Robert Shoemaker, 3rd, head of the radiology department of Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia; Dr. James F. Carrell, Philadelphia; Dr. L. S. Walton, Jenkintown; Dr. Otto H. Strouse, Parkside; Dr. F. T. Krusen, Norristown; Dr. J. Fred Wagner, Bristol; Dr. E. S. Buyers, Norristown; Dr. Linford B. Roberts, Wycombe; Dr. William C. LeCompte, Bristol; Dr. Allan Hoyt Moore, Doylestown; Dr. Anthony F. Myers, Blooming Glen; Dr. J. K. W. Wood, Willow Grove; and George S. Hotchkiss, Doylestown.

Guests spoke of the long and distinguished career of Dr. Carrell as a physician and a citizen active in promoting the welfare of his profession and his community, state and nation, to all of which objects he has unceasingly and energetically devoted exceptional effort and ability. Dr. Carrell, in responding, announced that he has one more objective—that of aiding in having a member of the Bucks County Medical Society, the oldest in the State, older than the state society, elected president of the latter organization. He indicated as a fitting candidate Dr. J. Fred Wagner, of Bristol, an energetic leader of the county society.

SOVIET LEAVES GAS CELLARS
OUT OF AIR DEFENSE PLAN

Relies On Great Distances For Protection

This is the ninth and final article of a series on how entire populations are being mobilized for the coming air war in Europe. Previous dispatches were from Paris, Berlin and London.

By Lindsey Parrott
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1935, I. N. S.)

MOSCOW, July 13—(INS)—Soviet Russia now places her chief dependence on her vast distances and her extensive air force for protection against air raids and gas attacks.

Moscow has constructed none of the gas proof cellars that exist in other capitals and so far as can be learned no such construction is planned at present. According to an authoritative source the question of gas-proofing was brought up when the Moscow subway was built. This informant says that the proposal was turned down partly because of the expense but mostly because it was realized that the half-dozen stations of the line would shelter only a tiny fraction of the population.

So far as distances are concerned, Moscow is 375 miles from the nearest border point, near Dvinsky and 500 miles from the nearest Polish railroad at Stolpe. This border area is a militarized zone and naturally preparations are being made there against air attacks. From Moscow to the nearest German border point, in the neighborhood of Koenigsberg, is approximately 700 miles.

The only other important industrial area apparently at all vulnerable from the air is the Donbas, the basin of the Don river around Rostov from which comes Russia's principal coal supply. This is approximately 700 miles from the Polish border. Along the line of flight would lie Dnepetrovsk, the big hydro-electric station. The big Ural and Volga plants, for instance Sverdlovsk, Stalingrad (tanks) and Saratov (machinery) and the southern oil fields near Baku are presumably unreachable by air. In the Far East there are no large cities or great industrial areas to fear air or gas raids.

Moscow is surrounded by a chain of airports where defensive planes against raiders could be stationed.

The strength of the Soviet air fleet never has been officially stated. Mikhail Toukachevsky, assistant commissar for Defense, told the Seventh Congress of Soviets that there had been an increase of 330 per cent. since 1932. Based on the League of Nations figures of 1931 this would give a total today of 3,225 planes. Foreign air attaches here have estimated the figure at 3,000. Vice-Admiral von Buelow, in Germany, put the figure as high as 4,300. Figures on anti-aircraft equipment, guns, machine-guns, searchlights, sound devices, etc., were omitted from Toukachevsky's report—the latest official pronouncement on the army.

Personal observation of many Soviet air demonstrations appears to indicate that the Soviet air fleet consists about

WEDDED AT NUPTIAL MASS
IN CROYDON CHURCH

Miss Mary M. Corrigan Becomes
Bride of Francis J. Kunz

REV. NOLAN OFFICIATES

With a nuptial mass performed at St. Thomas Aquinas R. C. Church, Croydon, this morning at nine o'clock, Miss Mary M. Corrigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Corrigan, Newport Road, became the bride of Francis J. Kunz, West Bristol, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kunz, Philadelphia. The officiating priest was the Rev. Father Thomas Nolan.

The bride was given in marriage by her father; and attendants of the couple were Miss Rose C. Corrigan, Philadelphia, a sister of the bride, as bridesmaid; and Thomas Corrigan, Jr., West Bristol, brother of the bride, who was best man. The organist was Mrs. Francis Corrigan, West Bristol, sister-in-law of the bride; and the vocalist was Miss Louise Nolan, Croydon.

As the bridal party entered the edifice strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March were heard, and other appropriate organ selections were played during the ceremony.

The costume of the former Miss Corrigan consisted of a gown of white satin, form-fitting, with high neckline, long sleeves, and featuring a train. The veil was of net with coronet of ribbon trimmed on either side of the head with orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was composed of various white flowers.

The bridesmaid was attired in a dress of pink mousseline de soie, with a blue satin girdle. Her hat, slippers, and mits were of blue; and her arm bouquet included flowers in tones of pink and blue.

Following a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kunz left for Atlantic City, N. J., for a few days' honeymoon. They will reside in West Bristol.

Two Lads Meet Death As Truck Tailboard Breaks

BURLINGTON, N. J., July 13—When the tail-board of a truck broke last night, two Burlington boys were killed at Stevens Station, the lads meeting their death when their heads struck the road-way.

The victims: Harry Gauntz, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Gauntz; and Harry Hellings, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hellings. The two had "hopped" a ride on the tailboard of a farm truck, it is stated.

The two died about 15 minutes after arrival at the emergency Hospital, their skulls being fractured.

Hellings and Gauntz had passed the day in New York, and were hitch-hiking home, it is reported.

DEFENDANTS MUST BE NOTIFIED ON TRIAL TIME

New Bills Are Signed By Governor Earle At Harrisburg

LIMIT MILEAGE COSTS

DOYLESTOWN, July 13—Several bills signed by Governor Earle in Harrisburg brought comment from members of the Bar and others interested in the operation of the county courts and the offices of Justices of the Peace.

One bill made a law by the Governor's signature requires Justices to obtain from defendants held for court the names of persons to be notified when the trial comes up. The District Attorney of each county is charged with the notification. This bill was deemed very fair and will eliminate a lot of confusion during court week on the part of defendants who sometimes do not know exactly what day to appear for trial.

A bill presented by a Cambria county Representative and signed by the Governor, did not bring such favorable comment from members of the Bar and court officers. Although the whole bill has not as yet been published the explanation of the bill signed by the Governor is as follows:

"Bill providing that wherever the costs of prosecution in any criminal proceeding shall be payable by the county in which the prosecution was held, such costs include only one day's fees for each Commonwealth witness."

Although members of the Bar did not desire to be quoted until they read the entire bill, they expressed the opinion that such a bill is one of the most silly bits of legislation imaginable. One lawyer described the bill as one that certainly should satisfy the crooks and criminals, because it would open up many loopholes in the criminal courts.

Another bill limiting mileage costs for return of subpoenas in criminal cases to the trips actually made, and not mileage of each separate subpoena returned, brought much favorable comment from court officers and others familiar with court operation.

Favorable comment was also heard concerning the bill of a Montgomery county Representative, providing writ servers must state the date, hour, place and manner of service of a writ, and on whom it is served.

G. W. Sitgreaves Dies As Result of Auto Injuries

DOYLESTOWN, July 13—George W. Sitgreaves, of Easton, prominent Easton business man and grand commander of the Grand Commandry Knights Templar of Pennsylvania, died this morning at 4:30 in the Abington Memorial Hospital as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident on the Durham Road, one mile south of Pipersville, Bucks County on the afternoon of July 5th. His automobile crashed into a truck driven by an Easton man.

Mr. Sitgreaves was one of Pennsylvania's most prominent Masons and was elected to the position which he held at the last convention of Knights Templar in Pittsburgh last May.

He is survived by his wife, Dianna, who is also in the Abington Memorial Hospital with a fractured skull received in the same accident. She has not yet been informed of her husband's death. Mrs. Sitgreaves will recover, hospital doctors say. Two daughters also survive, Elizabeth, who is a student nurse at the Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, and Rose Edith, who was graduated at the Wilson College in June.

Sitgreaves was well known throughout Bucks County.

ENGAGED

Mrs. Richard Cook, Tullytown, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Cook, Bristol, to Clyde Woodbury Nash, Haverhill, Mass., now residing at 916 Radcliffe street. The marriage will take place in August.

ACCEPTS NEW POSITION

Income Tax Bill Law

Harrisburg, July 13—The administration's graduated income tax bill became a law today designed to yield $25,000,000 in the next two years for increased public school subsidies, to make possible a reduction in local school taxes. Governor George H. Earle signed the measure along with 28 other miscellaneous bills. First payment of the State Income tax levy is scheduled next May for persons earning more than $1,000 if single or $1500 if married during 1934. A Supreme Court test of the graduated future of the act must be made first, however, before the tax becomes due.

Graduated from 2 to 8%, the tax is levied at the rate of 2 per cent on net incomes up to $5,000; 2½ per cent between $5,000 and $10,000; 3 per cent between $10,000 and $20,000; 4 per cent between $20,000 and $50,000; 5 per cent between $50,000 and $75,000; 6 per cent between $75,000 and $100,000 and 8 per cent over $100,000.

Narrowly Escapes Death

Vienna, July 13—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg narrowly escaped with his life today in an automobile accident which resulted in the death of his wife. The Chancellor was seriously injured but is expected to recover. Little hope is held out for the recovery of his son, Kurt, Jr. Their car crashed into a tree at Ebelberg, near Linz. The accident occurred as Schuschnigg, with his wife, Irma, and their son were being driven from Vienna to St. Geilgar, for their vacation, when their chauffeur apparently lost control of the car.

Many Seek Heat Relief

Sweltering masses anxious to escape Pennsylvania's heat wave took to the highways today for a week-end in summer resorts. Despite expected showers to check the rise of the mercury which hit nearly 95 in many places yesterday, a brilliant sun sent the thermometer soaring again today. Pennsylvania's death toll from the heat now at eight, continued to soar with many more victims expected unless relief comes over the week-end. Pittsburgh and Philadelphia sweltered under 93 degrees yesterday while Harrisburg found 94 extremely oppressive. In Philadelphia water was so low in reservoirs the city faced the most dangerous fire hazard in recent years. Policemen, acting on orders of fire officials, maintained constant vigil to keep youths from opening fire hydrants for street showers.

TO ORGANIZE AUXILIARY
FOR BOY SCOUT TROOP 1

Meeting To Be Held Monday Evening in Basement of Presbyterian Church

URGE ALL TO ATTEND

An attempt is being made by Troop 1, of the Boy Scouts of Bristol, to form a Ladies Auxiliary.

Members will be recruited from among the mothers of the boys of the troop and the wives of the troop committee and other women interested in the welfare of the boys.

The purpose of the auxiliary is largely to assist the boys in carrying out the Scout program and to increase the interest of the mothers in their boys' welfare. The first meeting of the auxiliary will be held Monday evening at eight in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, where the troop holds its meetings. All who are at all interested are invited to attend.

At a recent meeting, the committees of the troop and the Cub Pack meeting at the same place united to form a single committee to carry on the work together.

In the reorganization plans, John C. Johnson was elected chairman of the whole committee, with Maurice Updyke in charge of the troop work and James Hetherington in charge of the Cub Pack.

Herbert Pettit will continue to have charge of the records, while Thomas Harper will be in charge of advancement. Markley Streeter will help organize outdoor activities for the boys, and Rev. Knowlton will serve as contact man.

Herbert Pettit, Jr., was elected Scoutmaster, and becomes perhaps the youngest man in the county to attain the distinction. Chester Nichols was appointed assistant Scoutmaster. Ralph Scheffey, will continue his able service as cub-master.

TREASURE HUNT

Michael Cianciosi Returns
With Other Members of 'Pilgrim' Party

BRINGS CURIOS

Tells of Location of Spanish
Ship 30 Feet Beneath
Water

Home after nearly three months of thrilling adventures in a search for buried and sunken treasure, Michael Cianciosi, 323 Grand avenue, has a wealth of happy memories, and stories of unusual happenings.

The two-masted schooner "Pilgrim" of which Harry A. Adams, Jr., of Bethlehem, was captain, and of which his father, Harry A. Adams, Sr., Lt., U. S. Navy, retired, served as navigator, put into port at New York last week, and "Mike" as the Bristol lad is familiarly known to his many friends, arrived in Bristol on Thursday night. He was warmly greeted by his family and friends who had eagerly followed the trip through newspaper accounts and letters.

When "Mike" returned he knew much more about the sea than when he left. He embarked a "land-lubber," but came back with many laurels as far as knowledge of boats and of the ocean are concerned. For to him, after lengthy instruction and experience, was given the privilege of piloting the boat into many strange ports, and even into New York harbor.

Pleased indeed were the Messrs. Adams and their companions of their choice of a young man to accompany the expedition, for young Cianciosi, only 22, proved most helpful on the trip, and a most agreeable and willing companion, eager to learn and aid. In a letter written to the lad's mother, Lt. Adams had this to say, "It is especially gratifying to both my son and myself, to feel that out of more than 500 applicants who desired to make this cruise, we should have selected the particular one who so admirably fitted in with our aims and purposes."

Young Cianciosi, in recounting his travels today, stated that the trip was highly successful, the main purpose being to locate treasure, with the idea that later a boat with the necessary equipment for reclaiming such might go to the scene of the gold. There was located by the party a sunken pirate galleon in the South Seas in the vicinity of the West Indies group. It was sunk beneath about 30 feet of water, evidently being wrecked when it hit the reefs there. To "Mike" was the honor accorded of rowing the dory from the schooner which had been anchored out from the reefs, in to the point where the search began. There was trawled in the wake of the dory the instrument of the party used to locate metal. A reaction was received on the instrument, and then by means of a water-glass, a box fitted with a glass bottom to prevent obstruction of view by ripples or shadows, the party was able to see the submerged boat. Cannons were plainly visible on the deck, and the boat is thought to be about 85 feet long. All feasible stories leading to the find had been carefully checked before plans were

Friends Assist Him In Celebrating Birthday

Last evening John B. Detlefson was host to a few of his little friends at an affair given in honor of his sixth birthday. It was held on the lawn of the Detlefson residence, 1215 Pond street, where the children made merry at a number of games arranged for their entertainment.

Prizes were given to those successful at the games and these were received by the following: Edward Finegan, Fred Weik and Hanna Bracken. The youngsters thoroughly enjoyed themselves for two hours after which refreshments were served. Those present were Mary Elizabeth and Edward Finegan, William Pearson, Fred Weik, Warren Snyder, Mary Jane Bracken, Hanna Bracken, Alma Rathke, Bristol; James VanSant, Eddington.

A HOT beverage, first course or dessert will do much to make a cold main course attractive or, if the course beverage or dessert is desirable while the weather is hot. The new consommé jelly when chilled but may equally well be served hot. The abundance and cheapness of fruits make fruit cups a good beginning or ending to a summer dinner. There has been little change in the cost of foods during the past week except that lamb and some poultry are lower and beef a bit higher. Newcomers in the fruit market are currants, gooseberries and seedless grapes. Apricots, plums and pineapples are more plentiful. CUBANS CAPTURE CROWN IN FIRST HALF SERIES Lambasting three Casey hurlers all over the lot, the Cubans captured the first half championship of the Bristol Twilight League last night, burying the McDevittmen under the one-sided score of 11-3, while the Tullytown team was losing to St. Ann's.

Fifteen safe swats were made by the colored boys, one being a home run from the bat of "Jimmy" Spencer. "Tommy" Gibson had four hits in five tries and was robbed of another bingle when "Eddie" McDevitt speared his liner and with a quick toss to "Joe" McDevitt nailed the runner at first by a few inches.

While the colored boys were slamming the pill consistently, all sharing in the batting orgy, the Caseys seemed to be having difficulty in getting to the slants of "Loggie" Bragg. Bragg held the Caseys to four bingles. The Radcliffe street boys had but one earned run, thanks to a single to right by Paul Moore. Moore hit safely after Jones had singled and advanced on a grounder to second.

The Cubans went into the lead in the first by a run but in the third and fourth came back with trios of tallies to give Bragg a commanding lead of 7-2. Four more markers in the sixth put the game safely away and crowned the Cubans the first half champions.

"Jim" Spencer clouted his homer in the fourth with Dorsey on base. The hit was an ordinary single which got away from "Charlie" Ibrg.

SEED-PACKERS TO PLAY TWO TEAMS IN N. J.

The Landreth Seed-Packers are again scheduled to play two Jersey teams over the week-end. Today, the nine will travel to Pittman to play the Pittman A. C. and tomorrow the Landrethmen will be in action against the Mays Landing All-Stars, at Mays Landing.

"Eddie" Sullivan and Turner Ashby will twirl for the seedsmen although Manager Landreth is anxious to give Danny Hines a chance on the hill, as he needs another hurler because of the amount of games he has booked. The receiving will be done by Sid Purcell while the remainder of the line-up is intact.

The Landrethmen have won six and lost three games thus far this season.

Seven Years Ago Today—

The game between the Independents and Leedom's played on St. Ann's field ended in a 5-5 tie. "Tut" Romeo pitched for the Indies and held the Mulholenders to four hits. Mangan started for the Leedom's nine and was relieved by Fine in the fifth after the Carpet-Millers had deadlocked the count. Gene Dugan, playing short for the Indies, had two doubles in three trips to the plate. Greco had a triple in the first frame for the Independents but was out at the plate on the next play.

Two of Terry's Terrors

By BURNLEY

One of the stories behind the Giants' pennant rush this season is the sensational work of two young men who for several years seemed destined never to fulfill their early promise—Le Roy Parmelee, erstwhile wild man of the pitching mound, and "Hank" Hammer" Lieber, the former morning glory who appears to have made good at last.

Parmelee was always conceded to have phenomenal speed and a really abnormal amount of stuff, but his woeful lack of control prevented him from becoming a dependable starter on the mound.

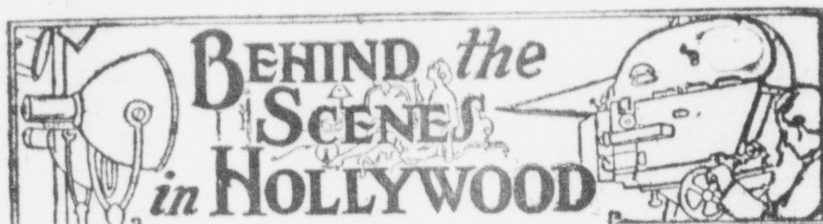

The Giants' management almost gave up trying to make a successful hurler out of Le Roy, but their patience has been rewarded in the last couple of years, and now the powerful speed ball ace is one of the greatest right-handers in the majors.

Parmelee, by determined and constant effort, finally corrected his tendency to wildness, and as a result is able to use his marvelous pitching equipment to proper advantage, much to the discomfort of opposing batsmen. Lieber, the husky outfielder from good old Phoenix, Arizona, can tell a somewhat similar tale. Recommended to the Giants by Art Nehf, one-time star southpaw, big Hank looked like a natural ballplayer and a great hitter when he first reported to the Giants' camp several years ago.

In Spring games Lieber would flog the horsehide at a terrific clip, but before long the pitchers found out that Hank couldn't resist the temptation to hit at bad balls, and after that young Master Lieber didn't get any good offerings to hit. This unfortunate fault caused the Arizona wallpaper to be sent back to the minors on several occasions. This Spring Terry didn't conceal the fact that Hank was getting his final chance to stick with the Giants.

However, Lieber is now showing the effects of much patient coaching and is no longer a sucker for bad pitches. Heavy-hitting Hank has become one of the most feared sluggers in the league.

HOLLYWOOD—Even without the presence of its star, the invitational preview of "Anna Karenina" (pronounced "Ka-ray-ne-na") was one of Hollywood's most impressive gatherings. The crowd outside Grauman's Chinese theater looked like the old days and the audience inside was studded with celebrities. For a year, the movie has gone around that Garbo is slipping and everybody sensed a crucial picture. Happily, La Garbo shines with all her old glamour in this one, and even displays new facets of her personality; chiefly a warm humaneness in her scenes with little Freddie Bartholomew, who is more appealing, if possible, than in "David Copperfield".

Greta Garbo

"Anna Karenina" is the first time Garbo has played important scenes with a child since she and Jack Gilbert made the silent version of the same novel under the title of "Love". She ought to do it more often, for the passages between Anna and Sergei are the most poignant of the whole picture.

Conceding that the secondary plots of the Tolstoy novel had to be all but eliminated, "Anna Karenina" is an outstanding job of transferring a book to the screen. Some of the atmospheric shots brought cheers from the first-nighters.

All around, there is high praise of Clarence Brown for his direction and of David O. Selznick for his courage in retaining the denouement of the book. The film is likely to reach the public almost as seen at the preview. Most likely omission is the tag softening the shock of Anna's suicide beneath the wheels of the train.

Soon, Hollywood stars will be as much at home in the air as on land. George Brent will add parachute jumping to his achievements as a pilot. He plans his first leap as soon as he finishes "Special Agent" at Warners. And the scene of it will be the flat desert country near the San Bernardino mountains.

Then there's Lydia Robert, of course, who gets going in "The very mention of an airplane. Lydia swears she will never go up picture.

again following the heart pounding moments when Bud Ernst flew her back from their wedding in Yuma and had to land here in darkness on an unfamiliar field. It was pretty shivery at that. Bud intended to get back here before sundown, but it was 8:30 p. m. before he arrived over Mines field. He had never put a ship down there before and maybe he was a little nervous. Anyway, he shaved some trees and high tension wires and eventually dropped the wheels, not on the field but on rough ground nearby. When they crawled out, Lydia was three shakes this side of hysterics.

HOLLYWOOD TICKER-TAPE—

Ernest Lubitsch's favorite dinner companion of the moment is Vivien Gaye, who came out here as Sardi Maritana manager and very nearly attracted more attention than her client. At one time, she and Randy Scott were all but married. . . . Douglas Fairbanks checked in and is stopping at a film colony hotel. . . . Paul Cavanaugh is so excited. An old friend of his, Commander Knox-Little, of the British cruiser Danne, has invited him to be a guest on the vessel. . . . Pat O'Brien's chest has fallen. All the money he won on the Braddock-Baer fight was lost when Louis leveled Carnera. . . . Just before Buddy Rogers left here, he attended a farewell party given by Mary Pickford at the Flamingo room of the Beverly Wilshire. The Johnny Mack Browns and the Charles Farrells were guests, too. . . . The section of an ocean liner you'll see in Universal's "Magnificent Obsession" is an exact duplicate of the Normandie. . . . And, at last, Paul Muni has found the play to return to Broadway in. He says it is better than "Councils of El-Law".

Mary Pickford

Did you know—That Gloria Stuart named her new daughter Sylvia Vaughn after the actress who played in "Roman Holiday"? She met her husband, Walter Stockman, the screen writer, when both were working on this picture.

ST. ANN'S ELIMINATES TULLYTOWN, FIRST HALF

The center of the batting order presented the most effective offensive power at Tullytown last night as the St. Ann's A. A. batters eliminated the Tullytown team from the first half of the Bristol Twilight League race, beating the firemen, 7-2.

Of the ten safe hits made by the "Saints" eight were divided among Avella, Angelo and Sabatini, each getting a double and two singles. Six of the seven runs were counted by these same three players.

The Tullytowners could do little with Whyno in the pinches. With the exception of the second canto they were helpless, although they solved him for at least a hit every frame. Whyno fanned six batters.

GREAT BRITAIN'S TEAM WILL INVADE AMERICA

By Wallace S. Hullett

(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

LONDON, July 13.—(INS)—Great Britain's hopes of winning the American Open Polo Championship at Meadowbrook, Long Island, in September, have risen considerably since the announcement that the team has already been selected and will probably have extensive team practice before departing for the U. S.

The famous Hurlingham Polo Club selection committee have chosen the following team to represent the club at Meadowbrook:

- No. 1: Capt. M. P. Ansell (5th Inniskilling Dragoon Guards);
- No. 2: Mr. E. H. Tyrrell Martin (late 16th/5th Lancers);
- No. 3: Capt. P. B. Sanger (P. A. V. O. Lancers);
- Back: Capt. H. P. Guinness (Royal Scots Greys).

Some surprise has been felt that the team should have been selected so early in the season, before the comparative form of the players has been fully tested. But there is an advantage in picking a team at as early a date as possible.

Capt. Guinness was unable to play last season, but on his previous form is the obvious first choice for the side, his magnificent hitting power making him indispensable to any English team. Not much has been seen of Capt. Sanger in this country, but in India he is rated as an eight goal player and is undoubtedly a good No. 3.

On the season's form Tyrrell Martin is the best British player but he has for some time been playing at No. 8, and will need practice in the No. 2 position to accustom himself to it.

Capt. Ansell is a good but variable player but on form he is the equal of any in the important position of No. 1.

No two of these players have ever played in the same team. This is a vital point which no doubt has not escaped the selectors and they will all probably have hard and full speed practice together before they leave, with particular attention to forward play.

It has always been considered here that Britain's series of defeats by America since the war have been due to a deficiency in forward play to a great extent. This deficiency may be remedied by forethought and practice such as the Americans invariably employ.

Soviet Leaves Gas Cellars Out of Air Defense Plan

50 per cent. of light, fast planes suitable for breaking up enemy raids by heavy bombers.

The Soviet today possesses a considerable reserve of pilots to take over additional planes built in case of war. Last Spring the Soviet already had 54 workmen's flying clubs, the largest of which, at Frunze, had 600 members. Air-training of collective farmers was begun last fall when the first 10 farmer-pilots were certificated. The official press has published the expectation that there will be 60,000 glider pilots by the end of this year. Training in parachute jumping is being given to an even larger number.

A certain amount of work with smoke screens as protection against raids has been done here. As long as a year ago various sections were experimentally blanketed with smoke from ground apparatus in practice raids. The results of the experiments have not been made public.

Besides the military, the Soviet has a large section of its civilian population trained in air and chemical warfare. The Society of Osoaviakhim which had 4,000,000 members in 1929 and is now reported to have 11,000,000, specializes in this work, and would provide a large nucleus for training the entire population in gas mask use in case of a war of gas raids.

Treasure Hunt Tales Galore Are the Result of Jaunt

made for the trip, and the result is of course most gratifying to the party. The "Pilgrim" had been chartered for a specified period, it being necessary to return by July 2nd for use by another party, and on the next trip, some time hence, a boat of different design and with additional equipment will be used.

"I'm glad of the experience I had. I wouldn't have missed it for the world," said "Mike" today. Then he told of his opportunity to learn the buoys, harbors, and much about navigation.

"Of course there is much to learn, but this trip gave me good experience." The course led first to the Bermuda Islands, then to the Virgin Islands, and the West Indies group.

Eight men were in the party when it left New York. One disembarked at Bermuda, and two were taken on there, and another left at Kingston, Jamaica, thus making eight for the return journey also.

Cianciosi has hopes that "Zombie Gold," a travelogue motion picture taken on the trip, might be shown in Bristol, and many of his friends are eager to see it.

The stories brought back by the traveler are many, but one is of particular interest. The party was digging on Mona Island, endeavoring to find treasure, and was engaged in blasting a landslide from the entrance of a cave. The skies darkened, with a tropical storm. The group hurried to the "Pilgrim" anchored out from the reefs, and the captain decided to leave the dangerous reefs and seek the nearest port, 60 miles away. In pulling up the anchor it was found it had broken in the rolling seas. Near Mayaguez enroute to port the party saw a small fishing vessel and drawing closer found a distress signal from the mast, a pair of trousers flying in the wind. Only two men were aboard, and they informed in Spanish that their rudder was broken. Aid was readily given and the two men taken to the small island on which their little community of a few dozen lived. The two on learning of the search for treasure, told a fantastic tale gleaned from their mother-in-law, a native West Indian, and were anxious to take the party to the woman knowing the story. There were but a few shacks in the port, and all residents were eager to meet the party who had rescued their two fishermen. The woman then unfolded the story of how there had been revealed to her in a dream years ago the place of buried treasure, she being told by the pirate who appeared in the dream that she could have the gold if she would sacrifice her daughter by throwing her into the sea. This of course was not carried out, and the daughter upon reaching womanhood had married one of the fishermen saved by the party from the "Pilgrim." But in the intervening years the woman claimed she had visited the spot revealed in the dream, had dug with a machete, at the roots of a certain tree, and found a chest anchored to the tree root by means of a chain. Being very superstitious none of the natives would touch the box to open it, but covered it again.

Eager to show the spot to the visitors from the United States, and telling them to take the treasure, the woman with an umbrella as a sunshade, accompanied them in the dory across the bay. The tree was located, and digging commenced. In spite of the heat, and invitations of the Americans for the natives to help dig, the latter would have no part in the gold-recovery as the command of the dream had not been obeyed. All day the digging continued, and blasting took place with this causing cocoanuts to rain from the nearby trees which were hit by missiles. This was the first time the natives had seen dynamite used, and it was difficult, states Cianciosi, to keep them at a safe distance when the discharge was set off. No treasure was found, although the woman was insistent that they keep on with the work. The tree root showed it had been cut with a blade, and it is thought that if the story was true, the root to which the chain was attached was also cut off by the woman in her excitement to uncover the chest. Either high seas might have washed it from the spot, or others hearing of it might have dug and reclaimed it, are the theories advanced.

Numerous caves explored on some of the South Sea Islands were reported by the Bristolian as of most beautiful coloring, with clear blue water in which frequently were to be seen large gold-fish. Bats abounded in many of the caves, these being of the large vampire-type.

One storm encountered by the men enroute to Bermuda lasted from three to four days, and drove them far from their course. "The waves were gigantic, and practically all were ill at some time or other, either from seasickness, exposure, etc." The young Bristolian told that it was necessary to lash the man to the wheel during the course of the storm.

It is the plan of Lt. and Mrs. Adams to visit the Cianciosi family at a future date, and they have also invited "Mike" to pay them a week-end visit.

WHERE DOES ALL MY MONEY GO?

I WISH I had more to spend this summer . . . simply must get white shoes and a new light sweater and those two books and, well, lots of things . . . I'm not extravagant, but where does all my money go?
